Please read through all of the information below before registering. By using our service you indicate that you've read our rules and policies and agreed to them.

Requirements

To join the Skull Knight's Clan you must have a combat level of 70. The RuneScape Application system automatically collects your RuneScape statistics, and if you don't meet the requirements, you will be declined. We will never let people who don't meet the requirements into the clan unless an administrator has stated that you can join or if you've been referred by someone such as the leader or administrator.

Users, who don't meet the requirements and still want to be in the clan, must choose one of the following options:

Join our junior clan called Warrior's Reborn at: <http://www.wizzonline.co.uk/wreborn> or Choose the Training Member usergroup. This can be chosen when applying.

Activeness Policy

The Skull Knight's Clan has an activeness policy which all members must follow and 100% agree with before registering or using any of our services. In order to follow the activeness policy successfully you must follow all of the following pointers:

- a.) RuneScape User - This is a clan for RuneScape players, therefore you're required to be an active RuneScape user. We reserve the right to remove you from the clan if you've quit the game or don't take part in other things such as our runescape clan events.
- b.) Forum & Website activity - Visiting the website and forums is extremely important because administrators or leaders will post news & updates and also information about events throughout the forum so you must keep yourself upto date by reviewing this information. We reserve the right to remove you from the clan if you don't keep upto date with news, announcements and event information because it will be an indication that you are not visiting the boards frequently enough.
- c.) Event Activity - You are required to take part in events when they are hosted, if you can attend it. All event information can be found on the "clan events" forum on our main boards. Failing to take part or contribute in any way may result in your account suspension.
